Class Song

The senior class of 1940

Now bids farewell to you;

We raise aloft

Our voices hearty

Pledging friendship anew.

On many days we've grumbled loud

Or given sighs and groans,

But really we are very proud

To call this school our own.

But now the time has come to part

From friends and places dear;

And so we sing while in our hearts

We think of by-gone years.

Each victory and each defeat

And each familiar friend,

Comes back to us as now we meet

Together to the end.

Senior Class History

"Twelve years of school! Why couldn't they wait one more year?" That was the universal groan five years ago when we entered high school to find that we had five long years, nine months each, ahead of us. This seemed a long time to insignificant Freshmen, who then were longing for the time to come when they could become dignified seniors. But now that we have attained this rank, those years seem to have shortened incredibly.

Our first two years in high school passed without much recognition. When we finished the ninth grade, we celebrated the end of Junior High and our entrance into Senior High with special exercises. We were probably the first and last class to have both seventh and ninth-grade commencement.

The next year, although we were again Freshmen, this time in Senior High, however, we began our high school record with Jane Hardee as president; Buddy Harrington as vice-president; and Lucy Nobles as secretary-treasurer. Our first venture was the sponsoring of "Elmer," a one-act comedy, given for the purpose of making money for what we thought was to be our Junior-Senior. The faculty came to the rescue and we saved our money. The marshals from our class were Maribelle Robertson and Spruill Spain, chief marshals; Laura Hearne, Geraldine Taylor, Tommy Langley, Evelyn Jones, Lucy Nobles, Jane Hardee and Hazel Gray Evans.

In September 1938 we were Juniors, with the Junior-Senior looming large throughout the year. The officers for our class were Louise Park, president; Buddy Harrington, vice-president; and Janie Eakes, secretary-treasurer. With the cooperation of the class these officers began work immediately to raise money for our great project of the year. We inaugurated "Dime Dances" which soon became a popular feature in the social life of G. H. S. At Christmas time, the whole class sold Christmas cards, the proceeds from which were added to the Junior-Senior fund. The result of the year's work was one of the most successful banquets and dances in the history of the school.

Now we have reached our final high-school goal—Senior year and commencement. During this, our last year, we have contributed to the school by our leadership in classes, clubs and student council. Outstanding athletes and talented members of Glee Club, Band and Dramatic groups have come from the class of 1940. The forgotten custom of Class Day with its class song, poem, prophecy, and history has been revived. Incidentally, we are the first regular class to graduate under the twelve-year plan.

We've enjoyed our years together and we're grateful now that the added year and ninth month were part of our heritage. It has prolonged our happy life here. We leave our experiences and testimony of our happiness and gratitude as a heritage to those who are to follow.

Chairman and Superintendent

James L. Little, chairman of the school board of the city of Greenville since 1919, has always advocated a progressive school program. For a generation Mr. Little has been regarded as an outstanding friend of the schools. His energies for the next year will also be spent in effecting plans for a new building.

As Superintendent of the Greenville city schools, Junius H. Rose has at all times taken a sincere interest in the student body of Greenville high school. A friend of youth, Mr. Rose has always endeavored to give his best efforts toward developing an excellent school system for Greenville. Next year much of Mr. Rose's effort will be expanded in enlarging the present physical set-up.

Class Prophecy

May 31, 1960

Principal V. M. Mulholland, realizing that he already has nine whole toes in the grave, decided that, before putting in the tenth one, he would take one final look at the members of his favorite class, the class of 1940.

In order to save twenty-five cents, Mr. Mulholland thumbed his way to Monkey Den, where he planned to see several of his pets. Upon arriving, he went immediately to see Mrs. Christine Whitehurst. Unfortunately, Christine and Carl were entertaining the social circle of the said city, and V. M. was unable to get past their butler, John Anderson.

On his way to the train station, he caught a glimpse of Ruth and Buddy Harrington blissfully happy on their little chicken farm in the suburbs of the city. Later, while buying his ticket, he was persuaded by persistent Russell Rogerson, ticket agent and toy-salesman, into buying a Donald Duck for "Heaven Knows Whom!" After boarding the train, our principal with his duck and satchel, found that he had been put by mistake, (he thought), into the car reserved for feeble-minded students. All of them, he found out, were going back to make their third attempt to pass the entrance exam of Caswell Training school. In this group he found eleven of his former prodigies: Spruill Spain, Lillie Deane Askew, Elizabeth Pollard, Laura Hearne, Jeter Cox, Edna Harris, Margie Stokes, Kathleen Moore, Janie Eakes, Geraldine Taylor, and Hazel Gray Evans.

While waiting to change trains in the nation's capital, he was taken by Congressman, Frank Brown, to hear Dr. Rufus (Bill) Taylor's lecture on "The Evil Effects of Tobacco." His wife, the former Hazel Williford, is bitterly opposed to Bill's stand on the subject. Of course he paid a visit to the old maid's school founded by Jane Hardee and Phyllis Shuff, who in their day were most sought-after. At this time four new members Clara Cherry, Virginia Rouse, Evelyn Jones, and Patsy Whitehurst, were being taken into the most popular campus sorority. The club has few members, because each prospect has to prove her ability to make cattier remarks than the two founders. Located almost directly beside the school was the convent directed by Miss Hazel Hunning, Nell McGowan and Florence Martin.

Mr. Mulholland had an uneventful trip from Washington to New York. He was met here by Eddie Curry, reliable chauffeur of the flirtatious Mrs. Nettie B. Herring. Eddie carried him to meet Mrs. Herring at the fashion show at Saks. Rosalie Brown, Anne Garrett, and Peanut Osborne were modeling Mainboche garments. Considerably flustered, V. M. made a dash for the back entrance where he ran into Slugger Ben Miller with his moll, Verda Harris. He was escorted by them to the underworld of this great metropolis. As they were going down the subway, he saw the familiar faces and figgers of George Sakas, A. B. Bracey, and Polly Williams on a billboard advertising "Sleep Tite Nities." They finally arrived at "May's Joint," officially run by successful May Meadows, assisted by David Johnson and Esther Jane Hines. Entertainment was offered by Gay Dupree, Ella Frances Evans, Ward Williams, George Johnson, Al Harding and Dorothy Moye. Around the corner at the Metropolitan Miss Louise Kilgo was singing the title role in "Lucia di Lammermoor."

Mulholland, having missed his weekly pedicure, went to Maxine and Zula's Beauty salon. Operators Myrtle Walters, Bernice Powell, Helen Campbell, and Ola Whitley, were working vigorously, but in vain on the homely visages of Wilma Harris, Margie Dudley, and Doris McLawhorn. Sufficiently glamorized to the nth degree, Mulholland paid cashier, Thetis Gurganus, a large part of his ill-gotten gains on Green Lights and then set out for Dr. Green's school for speech impediments. Several G. H. S. alumni were undergoing treatment at the school. Maribelle Robertson and Eleanor Nobles were developing resonance; Becky Moye was learning to speak more slowly and poor Harriet Gaylord and Margaret Futrelle were trying to develop powers of speech, something they have never attained.

Bidding them farewell, he went to take a last look at the Metropolitan museum. While wandering about the building, he happened upon dejected Charles Ward, Benny Thigpen, Charles Hudson, Marvin Stocks, and C. T. Fleming, a group he had lost twenty years before at the newspaper convention. It was only after careful examining that he was able to discern the boys from the relics of the pre-historic displays.

Catching a ride with Warren Parrish, driver for Ricks Touring company, he stopped in Philadelphia to spend the night with those two woman-hating bachelors, Preston Clark and Earl Kittrell. Of course, this wasn't to save hotel bill. The next morning at breakfast, he was astonished to read of Louise Park's marriage to Eli Culbertson . . . Preston, however, solved the mystery by explaining that Louise black-mailed him into it. She had a signed statement from Culbertson's mother that Eli had trumped his partners ace thirty years before. His two hosts took him to the Old Soldiers Home and there he saw Bob Whichard, Tommy Langley, Charles Ratcliffe, James Allen, and George Tyndall, veterans of the second world war.

And so our friend returned to his shack in Greenville, and it is rumored that his tenth toe is half buried already!

G. H. S. Prevaricator

Bud Moore for years, known as the genius of G. H. S., has organized a "Griever's Society" for those seniors who through their extremely long association with the school have become so attached to it as to make graduation almost unbearable.

Unable to raise sufficient funds to buy new books through other methods, Mrs. Herring, as a final result, has decided to charge a ten-cent-per-hour fee for a comfortable seat on the heretofore ignored divan. Already a tremendous profit has been realized and the number of students skipping library has decreased substantially. If its success continues next year, according to Mrs. Herring, several new love-seats will be installed with reserved places for J. B. and Ann.

Jennie Joyner, bashful and retiring junior, has organized a combination sewing circle and personality club for all G. H. S. boys who suffer from timidity. At the present the club is studying volume one of Miss May Meadows' series of books dealing with "The Art of Flirting."

The Arthur Murray school of dancing in New York has announced that Mrs. Maude Bowen and Mr. Robert Hubbard of Greenville, North Carolina, have accepted positions with the school as dancing instructors. Mrs. Bowen will demonstrate the latest jitterbug tumbles and Mr. Hubbard, because of his exceptional grace and agility, will teach the Rhumba.

At a recent chapel program, awards for being neither absent nor tardy during their high school career were conferred upon A. B. Bracey, Harriet Gaylord, Jesse Munford and Virginia Rouse. At the same time Ed Rawl and R. D. House were given certificates in recognition of their being the only students in high school who have never had to remain here after 3:25 in the afternoon.

In step with the true spirit of progressiveness the classes next year will be divided; half of them will have practice teachers and the other half will be taught by critic teachers. This arrangement was requested by students who complained that they were prevented from studying because it embarrassed the practice teachers to have the students know more than they.

Due to the lack of interest in the famous movie "Grapes of Wrath," the G. H. S. faculty, headed by V. M. Mulholland, has undertaken a complete reproduction. It is not definite as to who shall play the leading role, but it is suspected to be one of the group's leading dramatists. This lack of enthusiasm was stated by the said group to be due to the ill-chosen cast of characters.

Miss Mitcham's youth-problems class will be glad to hear of the recently-founded bureau of information concerning the American youth and its destination.

Scot Spain, better known as Speed, was reported having completed the 100-yard dash in approximately five minutes and thirty seconds at the State-wide meet. This was held at North Carolina's largest stadium constructed near the outskirts of the city of Belvoir. He has acquired a secretary to accompany him during his next personal appearance.

Student Council 1939-40

The Student Cooperative association, with Janie Eakes, president; Margie Stokes, vice-president; Anne Gaskins, secretary; and Christine Hellen, treasurer, has made every effort to better G. H. S. throughout the year 1939-40.

Believing that the improvement of school assembly programs and the development of school spirit were among the chief problems to be attacked, the Council has endeavored to make the assembly programs more interesting and entertaining by sponsoring an assembly-program contest. At the same time the Council has attempted to bring about more school spirit by holding assemblies built around the explanation of the major school sports. A public address system was bought for use at the games and to improve the reception of speeches in the auditorium. To increase school spirit further the cheer leaders were awarded letters for their service to the school and an electric scoreboard was purchased from the physics class to be used at games.

With the adoption of the new constitution, provision was made to grant charters to clubs in order to elevate the standards of the different organizations and provide for a certain uniformity of purpose within the school. This year's Council has granted charters to all the clubs in school.

The Council took the initiative in organizing the students of the schools in the Northeastern district and held the first Northeastern Student Council conference here April 5. The State Student Council conference has been invited here for the 1941 convention and preliminary arrangements have already been made for this convention.

Fifty dollars was donated to the library for the purchase of new books. In addition to the purchases made by the Council for the school as a whole, a number of clubs have been given money from the treasury for worthy purposes.

Permission was granted by V. M. Mulholland for a second-hand book store to be run by the Council on a commission basis. This store will begin its function at the close of the present session.

The Council during the year began working toward the ultimate establishment of some form of an honor system in Greenville high school. The achievement of this goal will mark another definite progressive step in G. H. S.

Janie Eakes, president of this year's student body, has served as a versatile leader throughout her five years in high school. As president of the Debate club and as a member of the Beta club, national honorary society, the Glee club and Black Masquers, she has enjoyed a well-rounded school program. As president of the 1939-40 student body, Janie has proved decidedly her ability as a leader.

Miss Helen Dugan, as faculty adviser to the council, has given her best efforts throughout the year toward developing an efficient student council.

Junior Class History

Composed of eighty students, the Junior class has taken considerable initiative during the year in the realms of athletics, dramatics, music and other school activities.

Early in the year the class chose as its leaders Jane Harrison, president Fenner Corbett, vice-president; Evelyn Langley, secretary; and Larry James, treasurer.

Under their guidance the class has sponsored the junior-senior banquet-dance, and other small nickelodeon dances.

Advisers for the eleventh grade have been the home-room teachers, Herman Dally, Miss Helen Dugan and Judson White.

Tenth Grade Class History

Enrolled in the tenth grade are one hundred twenty-one students. Homeroom teachers for this group have been Mrs. Cleve Bell, Miss Deanie Boone Haskett, Mr. Heman Fulkerson and Mr. Elmer Robinson. Many tenth graders have been quite active in music, sports, dramatics and student council activities during the past year. No formal organization exists among the tenth-graders.

*Best Wishes

*Best of Luck always!

Ninth Grade Class History

One hundred and thirty-nine versatile students compose this year's ninth-grade class. Active in scouting, dramatics, journalism, basketball and other sports are the students under the homeroom supervision of R. G. Walser, Mr. Robert Hubbard, Mrs. A. L. Dittmer and Miss Mabel Lacey.

A group of students interested in dramatics have spent their homeroom periods this year with Mr. Walser studying the fundamentals of acting and in actually giving plays.

The Junior High News, sponsored by a group of English students under Mr. Judson White's, is another outstanding accomplishment of the ninth grade.

Eighth Grade Class History

One hundred and fifty strong, the eighth grade has proved to be one of the most versatile younger groups in school. They have constantly displayed interest in music, athletics and other school activities. The group has been supervised by Mrs. Maude Bowen and Misses Estelle Greene, Ona Shindler and Moselle Jones.

Seventh Grade Class History

Under the supervision of Mr. Rodney Leftwich, Miss Mary Shaw Robeson, and Miss Virginia Boeger one hundred and five seventh-graders have spent their first year in Greenville high school.

The officers in Miss Boeger's homeroom are Nancy

Lee Taylor, President, and Fay Duval, Secretary-treasurer. Miss Robeson's class officers vary every month, thereby permitting a number of persons to hold office. Seventh-grade boys under Mr. Leftwich have had no formal organization this year.

Junior Dramateers

"Me"
G.B.R.

Remember
"Brookside"

Beginning with nine charter members, The Black Masquers an honorary dramatics society, has now a membership of twenty-two in high school with two honorary members having graduated last year.

The society, which was originated by the Rocky Mount dramatics department, was established in Greenville high school last year. Since that time formal tappings and initiation periods have admitted the additional outstanding dramatics students to the society.

This organization has been active during the year in all phases of dramatics work, having taken the initiative in the opening of the Dramateers' Workshop theatre. Another outstanding accomplishment was the sponsoring of a Valentine dance.

Black Masquers

Senior Dramateers

Under the direction of R. G. Walser, the Dramateers was organized last year and has rapidly become one of the outstanding organizations in the high school. Play writing, make-up, directing and acting have been emphasized throughout the year in this department.

Winning the state championship in the North Carolina play-production contest in Chapel Hill with their entry "Waiting for Lefty" and receiving favorable criticisms on their entries in the play-writing contest are this year's outstanding accomplishments.

A junior high Dramateer group, established in Mr. Walser's ninth-grade homeroom, also made much progress in dramatics this year. They entered the state dramatic meet but lost to Durham by a two to one vote. Miss Moselle Jones assisted in junior dramatic work.

Mr. R. G. Walser, who is completing his second year of teaching in Greenville high school, has encouraged a deeper feeling and interest among the students and parents of the city in the field of dramatics. Because of his decided ability he has acquired for his students as well as the high school an excellent reputation throughout the state.

Glee Club

As one of the oldest organizations in school, the Glee club, under the capable direction of Miss Ona Shindler, has played a vital part in training the youth of Greenville and in establishing the reputation of Greenville high school. During the Greensboro Music festival the Glee club received the most outstanding record it has made for a number of years. Smaller groups, including solos, trios and quartets, also received favorable ratings. There are approximately ninety persons enrolled in the Glee club.

Greenville High School Band--1940 Edition

Under the supervision of H. A. McDougale, the Greenville high school band has made rapid strides toward giving the school a band of first-class proportions. Topping all former honors, the sixty-piece band rated a two at the Greensboro Music festival this spring.

The green-and-tan uniformed band has made colorful appearances on various occasions both in Greenville and in neighboring towns.

International Correspondence Club

The International Correspondence club, organized last year, has progressed rapidly under the leadership of Betsy Hobgood as president and Faculty Adviser Deanie Boone Haskett.

The twenty-eight members which make up this organization have as their purpose familiarizing themselves with foreign countries through correspondence, acquiring a wider knowledge of their culture and customs as well as their geographical conditions and aiding in the establishing of a closer relationship between America and its European neighbors.

This year members have written to thirty-three different countries and have received one hundred and twenty-seven replies.

Junior International Correspondence Club

Established this year as a junior group of the International Correspondence club, fifteen junior high students organized, April 9, their chapter.

The fifteen members in this group are writing seven countries and have enlisted thirty-six correspondents.

Programs are held every second Monday and include a guest speaker who presents interesting facts about some country he has visited. Students likewise participate in each program by telling of their correspondences. These programs are similar to the programs of the senior organization.

The officers elected for the club are Martha Mullens, president; Jimmy Warren, vice-president; and Peggy Rose Smith, secretary.

Debate Club

Under the supervision of Miss Helen Dugan, faculty adviser, the Debate Club, composed of seventeen members, has participated in various contests throughout the state.

In the State Triangular contest Elizabeth Pollard, Eleanor Nobles, Helen Campbell, Janie Eakes, Jessie Munford and Wilma Harris debated the query, "Resolved, That the United States government should own and control the railroads."

Janie Eakes, Eleanor Nobles and Elizabeth Pollard were president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer, respectively. Weekly meetings were held throughout the year.

French Club

With Miss Imogene Riddick as adviser, the French club, Le Circle Francais, has proved itself to be one of the most active and worthwhile clubs in school. As a climax for its year's work, the club gave "The Life of Joan of Arc," Julia Ann Bland taking the lead.

At every Thursday night session the fifteen members have studied some phase of French life, travel or history, making the meetings interesting as well as educational. Presiding over the club this year have been Julia Ann Bland, president, and Louise Kilgo, secretary.

Students in Diversified Occupations

A course in Diversified Occupations was offered this year for the first time in G. H. S. Sixteen students participated in the course; they received training through actual experience in fourteen different trades. Optimistic forecasts have been made for the course for the 1940-41 school year.

Activities of the group during the year have included basketball games with the Wilson D. O. boys and a banquet at which the employers of the local D. O. students and the state director were entertained.

Beta Club

As the honor society of Greenville high school, the Beta club has done much to prove that it is an active organization. The sponsoring of College Day proved to be an outstanding event in the school year. To encourage scholarship and to promote character and leadership are the objectives of the club.

The present membership includes thirty-six students from the junior and senior classes. Hazel Gray Evans, president, and Geraldine Taylor, secretary, head the club's activities.

Gamma Tau

Organized at the first of spring for the purpose of stimulating further interest in mathematics, geometry and famous mathematicians, the "Gamma Tau," has done much toward encouraging superior work in math. The fourteen members enrolled have as leaders Jane Scoville, Sidney Johnson, and Phyllis Shuff, president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer, respectively. Miss Evelyn Buchanan is faculty adviser.

Marshals

Because of the innovation of the twelfth-year system, the above marshals have the unique distinction of marshaling for two seasons. Selected in the spring of 1938 for their scholastic achievements were Chief Marshals Mari-telle Robertson and Spruill Spain; other marshals include Hazel Gray Evans, Geraldine Taylor, Jane Hardee, Evelyn Jones, Laura Hearne and Tommie Langley.

Mabel Ames and Lucy Nobles were also included in the 1938 list, but they are no longer in Greenville high school.

Radio Club

Completing its third successful year under the leadership of Faculty Adviser E. R. Robinson and this year's president, Bruce Mayo, the Radio club has gone a long way toward making itself one of the outstanding factors in school life.

The present club has a membership of eight, five of whom own amateur radios. The club-owned radio is operated by all members.

Four members have recently passed required examinations to become operators and will receive their licenses in a few days.

Foremost among the organization's activities during the current year was the assembly program explaining the operation of a short-wave radio and its value to the world.

Cheerleaders 1939-40

Rosalie Brown, Gay Dupree, Betsy Hellen and Catherine Youngblood cheered this years' fans to many excellent victories. Elected by popular vote as cheerleaders for the student body, this group has cooperated in every way toward the encouragement of friendliness and good sportmanship throughout the high school and among all visiting players.

Football Squad 1939

Bettering all past records, Coach Bo Farley's Flying Phantoms gained second place in the Northeastern conference by winning seven games, tying two and losing one. Assisting Mr. Farley with the coaching was Heman Fulkerson, line coach.

The 1939 season was the beginning of night football in Greenville high school. Home games were played at the Guy Smith stadium.

Victories were over Ayden, Windsor, Plymouth, Goldsboro, New Bern, Kinston, and Edenton. Games tied were with Washington and Tarboro. The only loss of the season was to Roanoke Rapids, 7-6.

*Best Win.
Just Simple*

The girls' basketball squad of 1940 experienced an excellent season, winning nine of the eleven games played. The only loss was at the hands of Washington and the one tie was with Wilson. Coach Mary Shaw Robeson, alumna of G. H. S., has coached the Lady Phantoms for three consecutive years.

Coach Heman Fulkerson's Baby Phantoms, though small in size, showed that an experienced team could do well during the 1933-40 school term. Winning two out of nine games, the team ended a fair season. Victories were registered over Tarboro and Kinston. Games were lost to Wilson, Tarboro, New Bern, Washington and Kinston.

Basketball Squads 1939-40

The 1940 Green Phantom quint, coached by Herman Dally, won twelve out of fifteen conference games to capture the Eastern conference crown for the consecutive year.

Victories were recorded over Tarboro, Roanoke Rapids, Washington, Goldsboro and New Bern.

Kinston and Goldsboro, who defeated the Greenies in regular-season play twice and once, respectively, were set back in the conference tournament.

George Sakas, Marvin Stocks, Polly Williams and Carl Whitehurst will be lost to next year's squad by graduation.

Track Team 1940

With four wins and no defeats the Phantom trackmen ended their second season of competition. This sport, relatively new to G. H. S., began last year and the team has not been defeated.

Fourteen boys, under the direction of Heman Fulkerson, made up the track team this year. Five members who will be lost graduation are George Sakas, Russell Rogerson, George Tyndall, George Johnston and Warren Parrish.

Entering the state-wide high school track meet in Chapel Hill for the first time this year, the cindermen finished fourth. George Tyndall, the miler for the Phantoms, won first place in the mile race. The same record was made in the Civitan state meet in Greensboro.

*Best wishes for the year

Baseball Team

Athletic Council

Organized last year with E. R. Robinson as president the Athletic council rapidly proved its worth. The council is composed of all coaches, student managers of sports, the sports editor of Green Lights, a student council representative, a faculty manager, the school principal, and a student representative.

The presentation of athletic awards, the determining of school policies in relation to each sport, the encouraging of good sportsmanship and attendance at games were the standards and goals set forth by this organization.

The council is now a vital part of the school organization and is under the leadership of Heman Fulkerson.

Monogram Club

The Monogram club one of the oldest organizations in the high school, has functioned for well over a decade. Its objectives have been to enkindle in Greenville high students a stronger and more loyal feeling towards athletics, to promote sportsmanship and to increase participation in sports.

Under the leadership of President J. B. Kittrell, the club has sponsored numerous dances, plays and other entertainments. During the Eastern Conference tournament the club presented a trophy to the Tarboro team as evidence of their outstanding sportsmanship.

Other officers for the club are George Sakas, vice-president; Spencer Carroll, secretary-treasurer and Heman Fulkerson, adviser. There are twenty active members and two honorary members of the club.

Girls' Tennis Team

Organized for the first time this year, the girls' tennis team, coached by Rodney Leftwich is composed of five members: Jane Scoville, Josie Barnes White, Elpise Warren, Joy Flanagan and Shirley Warner.

The lady netters have won three of their four matches this year: two over Vanceboro and one over Goldsboro. They lost their only match to Wilmington.

Boys' Tennis Team

For the second consecutive year G. H. S. has supported a boy's tennis squad. Paced by Gene Johnson and Percy Wells the team has scored two wins: one over Vanceboro and one over Goldsboro. The only match lost was to Vanceboro. Mr. Rodney Leftwich coached the squad, which consists of Gene Johnson, Percy Wells, Warren Ficklen, Sidney Johnson, Ben Miller, Billy Hyde and Bobby Babcock.

Editors of Annual

Verda Harris Editor-in-chief
 Carl Whitehurst Assistant editor
 Maribelle Robertson School editor
 Margie Dudley Art editor
 J. Hicks Corey Business manager

Quill and Scroll

Quill and Scroll, international honor society for high school journalists, has as its objectives the promotion of the best interests of school and community and the upholding of the ideals of journalism. Foremost among the year's activities was the presentation of the Quill and Scroll banquet at the S. I. P. A. convention in Lexington, Virginia.

New members admitted late this spring are Bernice Jenkins, Verda Harris, George Abeyounis, Carl Whitehurst, Ted Van Wagenen, Preston Clark, Helen Campbell, Buddy Harrington, May Meadows, J. Hicks Corey and Christine Hellen.

Maribelle Robertson, president, Louise Kilgo, Margie Dudley, Thetis Gurganus, Laura Hearne and Spruill Spain are other members still in school.

Editor

Maribelle Robertson, editor-in-chief of Green Lights, has contributed her best efforts for three years toward making the school paper one of the outstanding high school papers in the country. As associate editor, managing editor, and editor-in-chief, Maribelle has become quite versatile in each department of Green Lights.

In addition to her interest in journalistic activities, Maribelle is president of the Quill and Scroll, a member of the Beta club, French club and band and is a chief marshal.

Business Manager

Preston Clark, as advertising manager of Green Lights, has exercised an untiring and cooperative attitude toward the fulfillment of his position. Under his guidance the advertising space in Green Lights has increased considerably this year. Last year Preston was assistant business manager of the paper and took complete charge of the advertising for the annual.

Beside his work in journalism he is a member of the band, the Monogram club and the Quill and Scroll.

Junior High News Staff

Sensing a need for more junior-high activity, the junior business class of Mr. Judson White this winter undertook the publishing of a newspaper, entitled "The Junior High News." Two four-page issues were mimeographed.

Headed by Editor Louis Dupree the staff enjoyed many worthwhile experiences in this undertaking.

At The Beta Bumpkins Ball

Yep, here they are in their most dignified party poses. Louise Dalton, secretary; Hilda Ogburn, W. P. A. art director; and Evelyn Buchanan, math instructor and senior adviser, seem to be making up their minds what to do next. It is still uncertain how much of the refreshments these three consumed.

Student Librarians

For the purpose of furnishing library assistance to Mrs. Luther Herring, eight girls were chosen at the first of the year as assistant librarians.

Capable, willing and cooperative, Deane Askew, Irma Fleming, Kathleen Smith, Jane Hines, Lucy Churchill, Hazel Gray Evans and Verda Harris have worked at the desk, circulating and shelving books.

These girls, selected from senior high, received much valuable library training throughout the year.
